Thanks. Tip for anyone else suffering the effects. Aloe Vera lotion works well to stop the sting.

Best is to scrub with soap as hard as you can and then let dry. DO NOT WASH AFTER THAT. Its not "Mace" btw. OC spray 5%. Basically hot pepper oil. I used to run the decon...

Rub eyes with soap???

permalink parent save report block reply
- Donald_Gear_Solid 1 point 3 months ago +1 / -0 baby soap yes, milk in eyes helps. But most important is wash one time. Do not keep adding water over and over. I told many people and many did not listen. 3 hours later still having reflash. Also later when you take a shower, point face away from body, dont let the water splash down you know where....

I have been OC sprayed in eyes 100 percent 3 times, and ran the program. I guess don't listen to me. OC is a bit worse than baby soap and regular soap for face. Do not use aloe or anything wet. Just scrub and let air dry. I can only lead a pede to water I guess.

Same here. 50 years old and my first time. Badge of honor. It sucked bad but it went away on its own fairly quickly and I'm sure it wasn't as bad as getting sprayed in the face. Good job everyone on not panicking and trampling each other who were coralled inside the first wall.

An Army veteran near me did a good job of keeping people calm, I think.

▼ I have a feeling that if you were past the public space line at the capitol they have pictures of everyone involved and will be arresting everyone that got anywhere near close to the building today.

I'll tell you stupid. When I got home and after a shower I used an astringent on my face. Even after a shower it still burned!

▼ I'm not understanding where you mean that you were. I was to the left of the center tower. I didn't get sprayed directly or I'd likely be in a hospital. I got the cloud that didn't bother so much on my skin at the time. It was the inhaling that made me retreat. I've got a lot of health issues and I had every reason to avoid being in that position

For reference, the tower is just above Scott's head
